School District: Carson City School District Approved by: Spencer Winward, Chief Financial and Operations Officer Comment: Carson City School District cannot determine the fiscal impact of this proposed language. We anticipate there would be some development costs in determining policy to comply with the new directives regarding testing distance education students. There may be additional costs to assist with completing the testing and maintaining the integrity of the testing system in a remote/distance environment. These costs could vary from year to year based on the enrollment of distance students and their individual circumstances.

School District: Churchill County School District Approved by: Christi Fielding, Comptroller Comment: There could be a wide variety of factors that would incur a fiscal impact, should we offer online exams and assessments. We would need to pay staff to proctor the exams either at the student's home or online with a camera, we would need to purchase the appropriate technology to be able to appropriately proctor the exams and assessments, along with ensuring that the students have reliable wi-fi to ensure that there are no interruptions, dropped lines, etc. It isn't possible to assign a cost at this time, but there could be significant fiscal impact, primarily with the technology and staffing pieces.

Comment: Unable to quantify the fiscal impact as it is unknown if the district would have to procure the remote testing platform and how many additional staff would need to be provided to proctor the examination.

School District: White Pine County School District

Approved by: Paul Johnson, CFO

Comment: The proposed bill allowing remote administration of criterion-referenced exams and college and career readiness assessments for distance education students would likely have a nominal fiscal impact on the school district. The impacts could stem from the need to implement and maintain secure remote testing platforms, ensure compliance with updated security procedures, administrative adjustments for irregularities in testing, and the cost of exams. Remote proctoring could range from $15 to $30 per student and technology needs could range from $500 - $2,000. The school district has approximately 15 distance education students that could be affected. The estimated cost to implement and maintain remote CRT and CCR assessments could range from $225 to $450 for the exams. These costs could be absorbed within existing available resources.
